Program Note

THE PROMISE THAT TOMORROW HOLDS TODAY was commissioned by the San Francisco Gay Men's Chorus and their artistic director Jacob Stensberg for their June 18, 2024 performance with the San Francisco Symphony. A second version for chamber ensemble was also commissioned for performance at GALA Festival Minneapolis on July 14, 2024. This work is humbly dedicated to my dear friend Jacob in celebration of the wonderful work he is doing in San Francisco. The text is my own, and it deals openly with feelings of anxiety, imposter syndrome, and hopelessness, while providing an optimistic message for how to move forward with the support of one's community and the determination of one's spirit to persevere.

- Dominick DiOrío, February 2024

VERSE 1

What do I do
when the air is thin
when my body's tired and the night is cold?
 What do I do
 when the dark sets in when the day's retired and my story's told?

Oh, who do I hold?

VERSE 2

How do I live
where self-interest reigns
and each all-for-one leaves us all alone?
 How do I cope
 when I'm lost in love
 when the next best thing's just another clone?

I need a stepping stone...

CHORUS

I want to feel home when I'm homeless,
to feel light in the darkness,
to hear the sound of welcome on the way.

I want to feel hope when it's hopeless,
to feel joy in the promise,
the promise that tomorrow holds today...
the promise that tomorrow holds today.

VERSE 3

How do I live
when I'm far from home
in this fast-paced land chasing new unknowns?
 How do I cope
 when the room is silent

when the night's too quiet
When ambition leaves my heart as cold as stone?

No more monotone...

Take me home...

Take me home.

CHORUS

I want to feel home when I'm homeless,
to feel light in the darkness,
to hear the sound of welcome on the way.

I want to feel hope when it's hopeless,
to feel joy in the promise,
the promise that tomorrow holds today...
the promise that tomorrow holds today.

BRIDGE

I want to feel red and green and blue in the gray...
I want to feel an orange, pink, and purple bouquet...
I want to feel a sound and sight sensation buffet...
Not tomorrow... but today...

CHORUS

I will feel home when I'm homeless,
and I'll feel light in the darkness.
I'll let the hand of welcome make way.

And I'll feel hope when it's hopeless,
I'll feel joy in the promise,
the promise that tomorrow holds today
the promise that tomorrow holds ...

CODA

No more monotone.
Home is here and everywhere I've grown.
My future lives in everything I've sown.
I know that everything will be okay...
I promise that tomorrow holds today.

Commissioned by San Francisco Gay Men's Chorus for their June 18, 2024 performance with the San Francisco Symphony and dedicated to my friend and SFGMC's artistic director Jacob Stensberg.
