Kindling: Small Reflections on a Limitless Faith

Words & Music by Elizabeth Alexander

I. First Touch

Water, kitten belly, hydrangea blossom, warm mud.
 New ears learn to decipher footsteps and music.
 While watching a fuzzy caterpillar, small hearts lean towards God.

II. Pages

On the pages of the morning paper,
 People rebuild shattered schools and restore lifeless lakes,
 Knit reconciliation out of promise and pain,
 And sing to the deathly ill and the newly born.

Constitutions are still being written,
 And slaves freed, and truces forged.
 We finish our breakfasts and roll up our own sleeves.

III. Chosen People

As children we are enchanted by the apple, the ark, the whale,
 The boy with the slingshot, the baby in the barn.

Later we grapple with forgiveness, resurrection and compassion.
 Chosen people are everywhere now – in the market, under the bridge.
 The next chapters are ours to imagine.

IV. So Much Radiance

Once we set forth in the dark empty hours of the night,
 In search of a Presence wondrous and unseen,
 Guided only by a voice still and small.

Our outstretched hands soon encountered
 The grain and brass of Cross and Menorah,
 And our fingers traced their contours with reverence and joy.

Only now, as the rising sun illuminates
 Wheel and Lotus, Yin and Yang, Star and Crescent, Eagle and Drum,
 We begin to behold the Limitless:
 So much Radiance within our reach – even more beyond.

V. Strong Braid

Aloft in the heady air of faith,
 Our senses heightened by incense and ether,
 We may from time to time become ecstatic paper kites.

We dive and keel and rocket,
 Riding each wayward gust with abandon,
 Recklessly aspiring to auroral heights –

Yet knowing all the while that we are safe,
 Tethered to the ground by a strong braid, a steady hand,
 And a mind that appraises the wind.

VI. Where Belief Begins

It comes down to this, in the end.
 And in the beginning and middle as well:

Earth, generous and visceral,
 Manifested in mountains and hidden within clouds,
 Familiar to rhizomes and young knees.

Air and Water, faithful channels of change,
 Whose currents and cycles nudge germination
 All the way through to rot and back again.

What's more, there's Fire, dazzling and improbable,
 Not only in the core of planets and stars
 But also in the hollow where belief begins.

Epilogue: The Chalice of Our Hearts

Our search for kindling takes us far beyond ourselves –
 There we gather Truth and Mystery.
 We return in joy to tend the chalice of our hearts.

About Pages: The news of the world often evokes sorrow, pain, fear and anger. But alongside hardship there are glimpses of perseverance and quiet determination. I brought that shifting emotional landscape into this song, honoring the courageous actions of those who have come before us, and inviting us to follow their example. E.A.

Small reflections on some small reflections

by Elizabeth Alexander

When conductor Jason Oby invited me to compose a large choral work inspired by Unitarian Universalism's Six Sources, I was thrilled. Rather than prescribing what to believe, these touchstones affirm the places we turn to for inspiration, meaning, and purpose. As expressions of shared human experience, these enduring sources resonate with seekers, skeptics, and believers alike.

Summarized briefly, the Six Sources are:

- 1) Direct experience with mystery and wonder
- 2) Words and deeds of prophetic people, which challenge us to bring forth justice, compassion, and love
- 3) Wisdom from the world's religions and Indigenous traditions
- 4) Jewish and Christian teachings, which call us to love our neighbors as ourselves
- 5) Humanist teachings, reason, and science, which warn us against idolatries of the mind and spirit
- 6) Earth-centered traditions, which celebrate the sacred circle of life

I recognized my own spiritual touchstones in this list – even if it didn't yet sound like the stuff of music! So I enthusiastically dove into writing lyrics, trusting the poetry would reveal itself.

But whoa, just because I was enthusiastic didn't mean it was easy! I struggled to find words that would truly sing. During long walks with my husband, I indulged in dramatic laments: "What was I thinking? There's no poetry here whatsoever! And humanism? I might as well set the tax code." But with each day I came closer to finding the rhapsodic kernel within each source. (Yes, even within humanism!)

The breakthrough came when I realized I didn't need to write a sweeping manifesto. The symbol of Unitarian Universalism is not a bonfire; it's a chalice – a small flame that kindles something deep within each of us. I began paying attention to intimate moments that gesture toward what is shared across religions and philosophies, moments that speak to our common experience of what is sacred and true. What emerged was a set of small reflections on a limitless faith: Kindling.
